TWENTY-EIGHTH COMMENCEMENT OF HOPE COLLEGE.

If ever there was occasion for joy, and pride, and satisfaction, on the part of the friends of Hope College and those that realize an sympathy with the object and aim of its founding; if ever there was a time in the history of the institution when its work and mission were felt and appreciated within and beyond the circle of its immediate environments; if ever there was a day of hope for a still brighter and more extensive career of usefulness, it was during the week just closed—the week of its twenty-eighth commencement, every feature of which speaks for itself without further introduction.

What added specially to this year's festivities were the dedication of the new library and chapel and the inauguration of the new president—events both of which typified a new epoch, a new departure, and new hopes.

The pressure on the columns of the News this week is in keeping with that upon the time and attention of our citizens, with a like result—can't take it all in. Hence at this point only a passing notice of the anniversary of the Meliphone and the memorial service of the late President Scott. The latter were held in the Third Ref. church, on Sunday afternoon, Prof. J. W. Beardslee, a life-long and personal friend of the deceased, delivering the address.

The anniversary of the Uffis Club, a literary society, on Monday evening, in the old chapel, was as in previous years a very successful and popular affair.

The Baccalaureate.

The graduating class was privileged to listen to a good, a very good baccalaureate address, by Rev. Dr. C. Brett, of Jersey City, N. J. Hope church was so small to admit all that desired to attend. Prof. elect A. H. Huizinga, of McCormick Seminary, and others, took part in the service. The preacher took the text—

John 12:37—"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

An education that is not practical is a practical failure. The true educator is a guide. The end of discipline is to teach men both to be and to do.

We congratulate you, students of Hope, that the Providence of God has cast your lot with an institution, in whose management common sense is tempered with a lofty aim.

I offer a single thought.

The object of knowing is to enable men to do, or in other words, the grand aim of a liberal education is to put you in a position to do something for your fellow men. One single thought easily branches into two:

I. The practical life will be enlarged in its usefulness, by a close study of the life of Jesus.

II. The divine example, while universal and inclusive, may be epitomized in a single word service.

1. The example of Jesus is an ennobling theme of meditation. He is the sample man of the ages. The arm that was stretched on the cross is the measure of man's broadest life. Youth is the season of ideals. Every one of you has fallen in love with some hero; and yet, if we would be perfect, we must break with the most transcendent character at its weakest point. You may however turn on our Lord Jesus Christ the scrutiny of all time. At all times, under all circumstances, he is our model. As the Lord said, after he had washed his disciples' feet: "Behold, I have given you an example."

2. Time would fail us to analyze the Christ life. We would sum up the deeds of his ministry in one word, which the foot washing brings into prominence. His whole career was one of loving service. We would take our Lord for our example, and must give ourselves to the single aim of making our lives a blessing to the world.

I take it for granted that you are ambitious. The target at which these archers aim is success. And yet, how small do worldly honors seem in comparison with the highest aims of the Christ life.

There was not a selfish hour in the career of Jesus. He was about his Father's business, always helping somebody, and at last yielded life itself a ransom for many.

So to us the highest ambition should be to serve our fellow men. The true man does not ask for a sinecure. He does not seek the soft place and easy tasks. Since Jesus has washed the disciples' feet, no service has been found too disagreeable or menial for disciples themselves. As Ruskin says: "If your work be first with you and your fee second, work is your master, and the Lord of work, who is God. But if your fee is first with you and work second, fee is your master and the Lord of fee who is the Devil."

Young friends of '94—Your duty to God and man demands that you first know and then defend the Right. "You know these things, happy are ye if ye do them."

"God did anoint thee with his odorless oil To wrestle, not to reign."

Go to your allotted tasks. It is the master, who adds this word of good cheer: "Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world."

Class Day of 1894.

The closing scenes of the school year, the class day exercises of the Preparatory Department of Hope College, took place in the old chapel on the campus on Monday afternoon. For years this building, which in the earlier days of the institution was erected by the students for a gymnasium, and subsequently converted by the president and council into a chapel, has been used for the last time. In the future the modern and commodious Winant's Chapel will be set aside for this purpose.

The large rostrum was adorned with evergreens, ferns and potted plants and the air was laden with the fragrance of flowers. It was to an inspiring march, performed by Miss Squier of Grand Haven, that six winsome girls with blushing cheeks and modest manners, neatly attired, and twenty bright, ambitious young men passed beneath festooned class colors of pink and white and the suspended class motto "More Beyond", and took their seats upon the platform. Below we give the names of those composing the graduating class of 1894, one of the largest ever turned out from this department:

John J. Bannings, John W. Beardslee, Jr., Hattie G. Boone, Minnie Brook, John S. Brouwer, Robert P. DeBruyn, Sietze J. Dekker, C. Clair Hekhuis, John J. Hinken, Thomas Keppel, George Kleyn, Robert E. Kremers, Benjamin Masselink, John G. Meungs, Chris W. Nibbelink, Augusta R. Otte, Anna S. Peeks, Alida Pieters, John G. Rutgers, Jr., Don C. Taylor, Christine Van Duren, Jacob Van Ess, Henry F. Van Slooten, Theodore Van Zoeren, John Ver Maulen, Jerry E. Winter.

There was a spontaneous outburst of applause when the venerable ex-president of Hope College, Rev. Dr. Philip Phelps, entered the chapel in company with President Kollen and was called upon to pronounce the invocation. By this time the inadequacy of the chapel for the exercises was fully demonstrated, as there were about as many if not more people gathered on the lawn outside than occupied seats and standing room on the inside, many of whom were relatives and friends of those who participated in the program.

Max Vogrick's interpolation of "Comit' thro' the Rye," rendered by a ladies' quartette composed of the Misses Hazenberg, Vaupeell, Brock and Steffens, was the opening feature. They were all in good voice and the harmony in which the selection was given was duly recognized by the audience. "Lascia" fatal ride was then given by Miss Alida J. Pieters and followed by "Angels of Buena Vista," by Miss Augusta R. Otte. Both showed not only careful training, but also graceful and pleasing enunciation and gesticulation. Miss Anna S. Peeks gave Longfellow's gloomy recitation of "The Famine," from Hiawatha, in a very acceptable manner. Immediately after Mr. G. Clair Hekhuis illustrated in a very humorous way how much commotion just one little mouse could create in a household.

Here the program was interspersed with Mendelssohn's spirited Hunting Song by Miss Christine Van Duren. She manipulated the ivory key board of the piano with a tenderness of touch and power of expression that brought forth applause.

Robert P. De Bruyn chose as his recitation "The Little Martyr of Smyrna", and gave it with noticeable force and care in preparation, and in order was followed by Chris W. Nibbelink with Browning's doleful story of "Ivan Ivanovitch," which was received with liberal applause. Miss Van Duren depicted James Whitcomb Riley's "El' Child", in a very captivating way, while Miss Hattie G. Boone gave the ladies of the audience an example of what a woman could accomplish by her relation of "Kate Shelly's" brave rescue of the midnight express.

After a violin solo by Robert E. Kremers, in which he exhibited rare accomplishment for one so young, came in close succession the oratorical talent of the class. George Kleyn, John G. Rutgers, Jr. and John W. Beardslee, Jr. The former's selection was Macaulay's "Virginia", the latter's Antony's oration over the dead body of Caesar, while Mr. Rutgers made all hands laugh with his interpretation of "Darius Green and his flying machine." All three acquitted themselves so acceptably that it was very hard to determine who carried off the honors. "Trouble in the Amen corner," a recitation by John S. Brouwer, was received with much amusement and subdued whispers among the occupants of the front seats.

A vocal duet by the Misses Hazenberg and Steffens concluded the program, after which there were final handshakings and farewell words. The entertainment as a whole reflects much credit upon the instructors having this department of the college in charge, and the only criticism to be made is that a number of the selections have been repeated "many a time, many a time."

Dedication.

The dedication of Graves Library and Winant's Chapel took place on Tuesday afternoon:

PROGRAMME.

Long Metre Doxology, Prayer, Rev. J. W. Beardslee, D. D. Reading of Scripture, Music—Jerusalem, Gounod.

Miss S. G. Alcott.

Opening Remarks, Pres. Elect G. J. Kollen, LL. D. Address, Austin Scott, Ph. D., LL. D., President of Rutgers College.

Music—"Oh most merciful," Bridge.

Address, Rev. Peter Moerbyke, D. D. Historical Sketch, Rev. Henry E. Dosker, D. D.

Music—Hymn 703 of The Church Hymnary (Arlington).

The quartette was composed of Miss Alcott, Mrs. M. Flipse, Dr. B. J. DeVries and Prof. J. B. Nykerk, with Miss Maude E. Squier as pianist.

Rev. Dr. Collier, President of the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America, was delegated as the representative of that body to express the congratulations of the Synod to Hope College, its council, President, Faculty and friends. At the dedication of the new building, Dr. Austin Scott, president of Rutgers and vice-President of Synod took the place of Dr. Collier in his absence. Dr. Scott said the audience would justly regret the absence of Dr. Collier, whose gentleness, altogether admirable temper, deep scholarship and happy diction would have been as a benison in devoting this building to its varied uses. He would have perfectly expressed the satisfaction which the Synod, as the representative body of the Reformed Church, felt in the fact that this fine building was now a part of Hope.

Yet, Dr. Scott said, there was a certain measure of fitness that he, a layman, should enjoy the privilege of expressing to the newly chosen layman—President the joy that all the church, laity as well as clergy, felt that these new means for further usefulness were put into the hands of Hope. One of the greatest acts of John Calvin was this that he brought laity as well as clergy into the direct service of the church. So under this roof are blended secular and religious purposes. May the higher spirit pervade them all! As four statues surround the tomb of William the Silent, may the four pillars of the corners of the noble edifice be Liberty, Providence, Justice and Religion.

Dr. Scott further said that while with one hand he brought the congratulations of the General Synod, in the other he offered those of the elder sister, Rutgers College—elder by just one hundred years. It seemed to him that the constant prayer in the motto of Rutgers was receiving in Hope its answer, Sol justitiae et occidentem illustra!—Son of Righteousness, shine forth also on this our West.

The poet was right when he said: And not by eastern windows only When daylight comes, comes in the light— In front the sun climbs slow, how slowly! But westward look! the land is bright.

The congratulations of Rutgers were all the more sincere for he knew out of her own experience what trial and struggle meant, and was therefore doubly moved to joy by this proof of new power in Hope.

As evidence of the desire of Rutgers for closer relation with Hope, Dr. Scott said he would now confer upon the President-elect the degree of Doctor of Laws, which the trustees had voted a week ago, which he thereupon proceeded to do and put in the hands of President Kollen the honorary diploma.

Dr. Scott concluded with a few words, emphasizing the need of such institutions as Hope and Rutgers, where through personal influence and teaching, Faith, religious and political, would best be taught. Great dangers threaten Religion and our Country. Twenty-four years ago, the speaker said, he crossed the North sea, when a terrible storm was raging. Driven out of the course the ship made port in the harbor of Brouwershaven on the island of Schowen, province Zeeland. He contrasted the peace and quiet of that island shore with the fury of the storm all about it. That, he said, is the lesson Holland has always taught and that we, following her, should enforce; surrounded by turmoil and restlessness there is a place for peace and rest.

Tranquillus in sacris undis—we can be calm in the midst of cruel waves.

Rev. P. Moerbyke had for his theme largely the mission of Hope College, and made some happy references to the good work accomplished by the institution in the very humble buildings that preceded the one now being dedicated. He also made due acknowledgment to Prof. Kollen for his efforts in this behalf.

Next came Prof. Dosker, the historian.

The ineptness of Graves Library and Winant's Chapel must be found in a report of Prof. G. J. Kollen, acting as the librarian of the college, to the council, calling the attention of that body to the fact that small and inadequate as the library was, its housing was still more deficient, and suggesting a forward movement along this line by the appointment of a committee and the attempt to collect funds. Of this committee Prof. Kollen was made chairman, and with him were associated Prof. J. W. Beardslee, H. D. Post, Esq., and Rev. J. F. Zwemer. Subsequently there were added Messrs. I. Cappon, G. J. Diekema and A. Visscher.

The historian went on to recite, step by step, the progress made, the selection of W. K. Johnston of Chicago, as architect, and how on Sept. 10, 1892, a modified plan of a combination building met with the approval of the committee: "And if I tell you that the poem in stone, which we dedicate to-day, is the realization of this modified idea of the architect, I leave it to your fancy to conjure up the rapturous and idealistic beauty of his original conception."

Prof. Kollen started out on his mission. Only distant and varying rumors of his exploits reached the public and the entire project seemed for a while to tremble in the balance of uncertainty, until at last the hard bed rock of large and substantial liberality had been reached. The corner stone was laid with appropriate ceremonies Oct. 12, 1892, Hon. E. F. Uhl, of Grand Rapids, our present ass't Sec'y of State, at Washington, delivering the address.

The speaker gave a review of the difficulties that were met: "Then came the winter. And such a winter, with its paralyzing financial depression; bills falling due, and the treasury empty. But few of us knew of the crushing burdens sustained, and the personal sacrifices made during that period of depression and damage, by the leader of that week, Pres. Kollen. And I would be untrue to myself and task, sir, if I did not in the name of the council and in behalf of the Alumni and friends of Hope, thank you for the noble work done, for the risk incurred, for the sacrifices made. May God reward you!....."

We looked to our friends, the friends of Hope, at the East. With what result?—this magnificent structure witnesses 96 1/2 pct. of the cost of this building has been contributed by Eastern friends of Hope College. The western friends, straggling under their own load—that of its heroic attempt to better the financial status of our western educational interests by a cool $100,000—was not appealed to.

The contractor, Mr. Jas. Huntley, Architect W. K. Johnston $300; very generously contributed $500; the Waverly Stone Co. $475; and the Zealand Brick Co. $200. For the rest there is no Western money in this structure. A trifle over two pct. will cover all the necessary expense connected with the raising of the funds.

And it is but doing justice to these generous friends, chief among whom are Hon. N. F. Graves, Mrs. G. E. Winants and Miss Alida Van Schaick, to state that they have given to this institution what is infinitely better than Dollars and Cents—their sympathy, their love, their prayers.....

This building, the history of whose erection I have briefly tried to trace, under the blessings of God will be a lasting stimulus to the love and beneficence of the many warm friends of

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

If subscribers order the discontinuance of newspapers, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrears are paid. If subscribers refuse or neglect to take their newspapers from the office to which they are sent, they are held responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the newspapers are sent to the former place of residence, they are then responsible. CONCERNING DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS: The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can have arrested any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders it discontinued, or orders the postmaster to mark it "refused" and to send a postal notifying the publisher, lays himself liable to arrest and fine.

Ocean steamship lines report that the number of immigrants booked by them this season is 60 per cent. less than at this time last year, and the official figures show that the number entering the port of New York during the past three months was 17,767 less than in the corresponding period of last year. Dull times and strictness in enforcing the immigration laws are credited with this decline.

A practice common among sailors when desirous of securing a small quantity of cool water on Lake Michigan is to sink an empty jug with lead and line to a distance of 30 or 40 fathoms and draw the water from the bottom of the lake. The jug is corked before it is lowered, but the pressure of water from above is sufficient when a certain depth is reached to force the cork inward and allow the jug to fill. In raising the jug to the surface the water taken in after the cork was removed is not replaced by the warmer water near the surface, and a cool drink is assured. Of course, it is necessary to see that the cork is not too tight and that it is cut off even with the top at the neck of the jug.—Marine Review.

Senator Smith (Dem.) of New Jersey is one of the kickers among his party against the discriminations made in the pending tariff bill affecting Northern industries, and especially those in which his own people are interested. And for good reason, for he has heard from his constituents on this subject. While addressing the Senate the other day in a defense of himself against the charge of treason towards his party, he made use of these words: "Party ties grow weak when they make disregard of one's own people, the test of fealty. And I do not hesitate to add that even the misrule of the Republican party is to be preferred to the communism of the Populists and Socialists. If that be treason, then these self-appointed censors do right to lay the charge at my door."

Flower Mission Social.

June 8th the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Holland held a social in the interest of the Flower Mission. It was held in honor of Jennie Cassidy's birthday—the founder of the Flower Mission work in the W. C. T. U.

The day is observed in the state house of correction at Ionia by gathering the prisoners in the chapel to enjoy a pleasant program of music, recitations, and addresses by the W. C. T. U., after which each prisoner receives a bouquet of flowers with an appropriate motto or text, neatly written on a card and fastened with a bit of white ribbon.

In midwinter a similar festival is held, at the close of which apples are distributed instead of flowers, and pledge cards are given with them.

At one of the meetings 225 of the boy prisoners signed the pledges. It took five bushels of apples to furnish each boy one.

It is surprising how the common enjoyments of life are appreciated by those who are usually deprived of them.

To return to the social. Mrs. Van O'Linda gave some interesting details of Jennie Cassidy's life. Although an invalid, confined to her bed, she originated the Flower Mission, and inspired many a tried worker with fresh zeal, and comforted many a burdened heart. Within the last two years she died, and a fine monument to her memory was recently unveiled at Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Hazenberg read an article showing how a single white rose had power to soften the most hardened heart, and gave a most interesting and touching account of her work among the prisoners in Johannes, Africa.

"Throw out the life!

Some one is drifting away.

Throw out the life line,

Some one is sinking to-day!"

Our president, Mrs. Cook, made appropriate remarks after which dainty refreshments were served, and the ladies parted, with a better understanding of the work and meaning of the Flower Mission than they had before.

To the Farmers!

Be sure and look well this season to your own interests, in buying your Hay Loaders and other farming tools.

I keep at present the Rock Island Rake and Hay Loader combined, which is far ahead of anything yet offered in this vicinity. It has already been tested, to the best satisfaction, by one of our largest farmers in Fillmore, Kansas. Dykhuys. He prefers it far above the Keystone. Also something new in the Hay unloading line, with which you can unload your grain as well as your hay.

COULDN'T AGREE.

Jurors Unable to Reach a Decision in the Ellis Case.

From the First Ballot Seven Held Out for Acquittal and Five for Conviction
—The Case May Never Be Tried Again.

NO VERDICT.

LANSING, Mich., June 26. — After forty-four hours' deliberation the jury in the forgery case of Attorney General Ellis was discharged at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The jurors stood seven for acquittal to five for conviction from the first ballot. It is doubtful if the case is ever tried again. Ellis declares that if it is the state will have to bear the expense of summoning his witnesses, as the trial just closed cost him his fortune.

The case went to the jury Saturday at 5:35 p. m., after being on trial three full weeks. Judge Person, in charging the jury, said a man could not be convicted solely because a motive for the crime existed, though a motive may be considered in determining the guilt. He said the jury must not be swayed by prejudice nor moved by sympathy for the respondent or his surroundings. The jury was the judge of the question of fact whether Ellis caused the alleged alterations to be falsely made. He is guilty as much if he caused said alterations to be made by the hand of another as if he had made them by his own hand. And it makes no difference whether he caused such alterations to be made by the hand of Healy or by the hand of Wood, or in part by Healy and in part by Wood.

THE ORDER WON.

Decision on the Validity of Death Claims
Favors the Maccabees.

LANSING, June 21. — The great camp of the K. O. T. M. is supreme so far as the determination of the validity of death claims is concerned. This doctrine has been laid down by the Michigan supreme court in the case of John H. Herubeau vs. the great camp of the Knights of Maccabees.

Alexander Coderre became a member of the order in 1889, and named the plaintiff as beneficiary, claiming that he was a dependent. Coderre died in July, 1892, and the executive committee of the order, which passed upon the claim, refused to allow it on the ground that the plaintiff was not nor never had been a dependent of Coderre. The great camp sustained the position taken by the executive committee, and suit was then brought in the circuit court. The circuit judge directed a verdict for the defendant on the ground that by virtue of the by-laws of the order beneficiaries are confined to widows, relatives within the first degree of kinship, and dependents. The by-laws also give the executive committee power to pass on death claims, and an appeal may be taken to the great camp, but the decision of the latter body is final, and from it there is no appeal. The supreme court affirms the decision of the lower court, with costs to the defendant.

Minded Laid at Lapeer.

LAPEER, June 27. — The corner stone of the home for the feeble minded and epileptic in this city was laid in the presence of a great multitude Tuesday afternoon by Most Worthy Grand Master W. H. Rich and staff, state troops, Knights Templar, many lodges of F. and A. M., Knights of Pythias, Maccabees and other civic societies. Gov. Rich spoke on state affairs. C. G. Luce gave the oration of the day and W. B. Baum, of East Saginaw, father of the bill to establish the institution, addressed the assemblage in regard to the objects of the asylum. Detroit commander No. 1, K. T., who came with Schremer's band, were received everywhere with cheers. This evening they gave a dress parade which was followed by fireworks and a parade of bicyclists.

Hope College in our beloved Reformed Church."

The "Graves Library building and Wabant Chapel" is located on the west side of the college campus, opposite Eleventh street, now Graves Place, and may be said to face Centennial Park. It is constructed of Watervliet stone and the entire length is 144 feet, width 80 feet. The ground floor contains on the north end the library or stack room, 38 x 36 feet, with a capacity for 40,000 books. This part of the building is absolutely fire-proof, and of steel construction. The librarian's room is 11 x 20 feet, with lavatory attached. The reading room south of the stack room is 20 x 24 ft., president's room 22 x 36 ft. These rooms are also fire proof and of steel construction.

The main hall is 28 ft. long and 13 ft. wide, with stairs finished in oak, 5 ft. wide, timbered ceiling. The front vestibule is 8 x 13 ft., the floor laid with tiles. Next comes the Y. M. C. A. room, an annex to the chapel, 22 ft. wide and 56 long, with circular bay 9 x 12 ft., and rear porch 8 x 8 ft. This room can be thrown into the chapel by means of sliding doors. The chapel proper is 37 ft. 9 in. by 56 ft. 4 in., with sloping floor and circular seats, platform on the south, and open timbered roof, finished in pine. The two rooms when thrown together will give an audience room of 60 x 60 ft., with a seating capacity of 700.

The stack room, librarian's, president's and reading rooms, the hall and the stairs are all finished in oak; the Y. M. C. A. room and chapel in Norway pine.

The second floor contains four spacious lecture rooms. The museum is to be placed over the stack room.

In the basement are the furnace rooms and lavatory, with floors laid in concrete and cement.

Height of ceiling in basement is 9 ft., first floor 12 ft.; second floor 12 ft. 6 in. The roof is covered with slate and the trimmings are of copper with copper gutters and conductors.

The architect is W. K. Johnston of Chicago. His representative on the grounds, superintending the construction, was Mr. Jas. Price of this city. The contractor for the entire building except the heating apparatus, is Jas. Huntley of this city. The electric lighting and fixtures were put in by the Wolverine Co. The furniture contracts were awarded to A. H. Andrews & Co., of Chicago and the Grand Rapids School Furniture Co. As evidence of personal appreciation during the week Mr. C. A. Stevenson sent in the clock that adorns the chapel, O. Breyman & Son and Mr. J. Raven each a mantel clock, and H. Kleintveld a beautiful copy of the Holy Bible. The building complete costs over $40,000.

Welcome to new members, by the President.
Doxology.

Much interest has always been centered in the annual gatherings of the alumni of Hope, but there was a new, an additional departure this week in the way of a banquet at the New City Hotel and hereafter a spread of similar nature will be one of the anticipated features of the commencement week program.

It was nigh on to ten o'clock Tuesday evening when the members of the Alumni Association, members of the council, the faculty of both the college and seminary and invited guests took seats in the capacious dining room. Covers were laid for 70 and every seat was occupied. The tables were tastily arranged and decorated and in conspicuous positions at the east end of the room were portraits of ex-president Phelps, the late president Scott, and president-elect Kollen. G. J. Diekema and Prof. Kleinheksel constituted the committee of arrangements and the guests seated were as follows:

Messrs. and Mesdames—Pres. G. J. Kollen, Dr. Austin Scott of Rutgers, Rev. C. Boers, Rev. G. H. Mandeville, Prof. H. Breits, A. Visscher, G. J. Diekema, Rev. J. Lamar, Rev. A. Stegeman, Rev. A. Van den Berg, Rev. R. Hoemendaal, Pr. F. C. Doesburg, Rev. G. J. Hakhuis, Rev. W. H. Bruins, Prof. J. Kleinheksel, Rev. A. Oltmans, ex Pres. Ph. Phelps, Mayor Geo. P. Hummer, Rev. P. Moerdyke, Prof. J. W. Beardslee, Chas. E. Dutton, Prof. N. M. Steffens, Rev. J. Zwemer, F. J. Cushing, Rev. H. E. Dosker.

Messrs.—Prof. J. B. Nykerk, Rev. A. Buursma, Rev. D. Broek, Rev. J. Broek, Dr. S. De Spelder, Prof. D. B. Yntema, Rev. J. H. Karsten, Rev. E. W. Sta pelkamp, Rev. H. Williamson, Prof. A. H. Huizinga, T. Huizinga, K. J. Dykema, P. Swart, G. Tysse, A. Van Duren, W. J. Van Kersen, H. Van Landegend, Rev. J. F. Zwemer.

Mesdames—C. Gilmore, W. Brusse, Miss Lizzie Moerdyke.

After an invocation by ex-president Phelps the guests devoted their exclusive attention to the sumptuous spread, provided by Landlord Williams and which would have done credit to a Delmonico or a Kingsley.

Prof. Yntema in a very clever manner introduced as the toastmaster of the evening ex Speaker G. J. Diekema, who occupied a seat beside President Kollen at the head of the main table. As a starter "Diek" referred to his alma mater and the class with which he graduated in 1881. It was decided at that time, he said, to have a class monument. It was concluded to plant a grove of evergreens. In the center one was placed as a marker to the professor who was now the President. The prophesy of Joseph, he continued, had again been fulfilled, and all the outer sheaves this evening made their bow in acknowledgement.

President Kollen in response to this toast said: "I came here for the purpose of having a good time, and hate to be so unceremoniously interrupted. I am somewhat bothered as to how I am related to the alumni of Hope. Some say I am the step-father of the organization, and I hope it is true. What we want is more enthusiasm among the members of this association. An occasional gathering of this kind, some outside meetings from time to time, a kind word now and then, will be productive of much good. The college is proud of its alumni, and I hope that the alumni in turn will be proud of its alma mater."

Toastmaster Diekema touched the facetious vein so becoming to him, when he said: "We have with us from far east, a gentleman who combines in his 'make up' four distinct nationalities—the Scotch, Irish, English and French. He has no Dutch blood, but still he loves the Hollanders. He came here to visit his sister, and from what I can discern he has become so infatuated with her that he may take her back east with him." He then tried to solve the relationship problem as to how a man could become his own grandfather, and inadvertently referred to Old Rutgers of New Brunswick, N. J. This of course called for a response from the honored guest of the evening, the brilliant young president of "Old Rutgers," Dr. Austin Scott. He took no exceptions to the accusation that the blood of various nationalities courses through his veins. Referring to the toastmaster's remarks he continued: "Old Rutgers—let me analyze this. It may mean old fogysm and uncertain age. It seems to me there is a little of the largeness of state in my friend's views, or too much hope. In using the word 'old' I hope he did not mean it in the former sense but only as a term of endearment. I cannot say but that this was his meaning. I know 'Old Rutgers' more particularly from the record it has made. Look what she has done. She has kept the faith and is full of the spirit and the holy ghost. To-day is the 25th anniversary of my class at Yale. I abandoned the pleasures that this anniversary would afford me, and instead came here to become acquainted. You have been kind to me because I am a representative of 'Old Rutgers.'" In concluding his remarks, Dr. Scott admonished the alumni to stand by the old classical culture, for if there had been no Latin, there would have been no Holland or College to-day. He made good this claim by citing an incident in the experience of Dr. Van Raalte, the founder of both. When in Detroit in 1846, looking for a state to settle in he found a friend and adviser in the late Dr. Duffield. As the former had not acquired much English and the latter could not talk Dutch, the conversation was carried on in Latin. The doctor hoped that God would bless Hope College, its president, its faculty, and its students, and should they come to Rutgers they would be given the same cordial welcome that he had received in Holland.

Rev. James F. Zwemer was next called upon to speak for the North-Western Academy at Orange City, Iowa, of which he is principal. He defined the relationship existing between his institution, Hope and Old Rutgers, and told how much the weaker sister was being improved by coming in contact with the students of Hope. Let Hope thank the west for the vantage ground gained, and look forward to a fourth sister at Pleasant Valley, Ill., next year. Hope has a large field to cover, remarked the speaker, and the west stands ready to render assistance. In the early days it was not deemed advisable to spend the limited means at command in buildings and brick, but in endowment, and the wisdom of this policy has been fully demonstrated.

Prof. Henry E. Dosker told how, when he came to this country in 1872, at the age of 18, he was first induced to come to Holland to continue his education and how "green" he was in those days in looking forward to finding at Hope College marble palaces. In this respect he was greatly disappointed, but when he met Dr. Phelps, Hope's first president, how changed was his opinion, as regards the character of the institution. The speaker delved into the recollections of early college days under President Phelps. When the Doctor used to call the boys in the study and give utterance to the expression "exactly, but—" the students all knew what he meant. They frequently tried to measure swords with him, but always came out shamefully defeated. "Even then he was old, but ever young; and so far as we can see he is the same yesterday, to-day, and as long as we live."

In response to a call from the toastmaster Dr. Phelps spoke of the great satisfaction that it afforded him to learn that one of the alumni, one of his old pupils, had been called to the presidency of Hope College. He remembered the time when student Kollen first walked into his study to enter the institution, and although then but a youth—how favorably he was impressed with his manliness and self-respect. For him rebukes were not necessary, and the occasional advice given was always followed. "This visit to Holland has filled me with the greatest pleasure and I am glad to know that Hope has emerged from its obscurity and is being known in every portion of the world by its alumni."

"Hope's field" was the toast assigned to Prof. Kleinheksel. He urged upon his fellow alumni the importance of Americanizing the Hollanders who came to this country. Immigrants were landing on our shores every day and allowed to congregate and aggregate in our large cities, especially Grand Rapids. Most of them came here with only one purpose in view and that was to gain a living. He looked upon it as being one of the chief aims of the alumni to elevate these Holland immigrants and make them patriotic citizens, who would pay as much respect to the stars and stripes of the American Republic as they once did to the tri-color of the Netherlands.

Rev. Albert H. Huizinga, of New Paltz, N. Y., professor-elect at McCormick's Seminary, Chicago, declared that he was no prophet, neither the son of a prophet, as intimated by the ex Speaker, and hardly knew how to respond to the toast "the future of Hope." He kept up lots of thinking as to what it ought to be. "My life," he stated, "is bound up with the life of Hope and its surroundings and attachments, and I shall always entertain hallowed thoughts and memories regarding my alma mater. I was here in the days when the institution passed through stern sacrifices and privations, but out of all this it has emerged and now it has for its faculty as noble and consecrated a lot of men as can be found in any institution of its kind in the land."

The moon was well up in the heavens and the roosters were heard in their midnight crowing, when Mayor George P. Hummer spoke of the very satisfactory and pleasant relations that existed at present between Hope College and the city of Holland. He only wished that more of the citizens could have been present and listened to what had been said this evening, and concluded by saying that the city had every reason to be proud of its college.

At the business meeting of the Alumni Dr. John A. Otte, now in China, was elected president for the ensuing year. This is done in view of the fact that at Commencement in 1895 the Doctor, and his wife, are expected to be in this country. The other officers are: Prof. J. H. Kleinheksel secretary, A. Visscher treas., Rev. John G. Fagg orator, Rev. P. T. Phillips poet, and Prof. A. H. Huizinga, Ph. D., Chronicler.

Inauguration of President Kollen.
Dr. Scott in his opening remarks conveyed felicitations upon the fact that the College is coming into a more direct touch with the age and the people—the very key-note of the jubilee that characterized the occasion.

We regret exceedingly that for want of space we cannot give a synopsis of the many excellent things that were said at the inaugural. The exercises were as follows:

Inaugural Address—By President Kollen, LL. D.
Doxology and Benediction.

Ex-president Phelps, in his address, spoke from the peculiar standpoint he has always occupied while laboring in this field, and held up the logical connection between the past and the present:

Our subject, four years ago, you remember, was Unity in American Education. Christianity was regarded as the basis of our civil government; and we endeavored to show that freedom in religion insured to us the right to maintain essential Christian principles in all our social and civil institutions.

We argued that the Public School System of our different States ought to be upheld, but only on a Christian basis, for Christianity is not sectarianism, it is exclusive of all other so-called religions, and is absolutely and forever binding in all the relations of individuals and communities.

Nearly half a century ago, this region was settled by a congregation of families under the leadership of Rev. A. C. Van Raalte. It was pre-eminently a religious community; and the people found themselves entirely free to carry out their conscientious convictions. The school which they established, assured at once both civil and ecclesiastical connections, so that the single organizations came under the educational influence of the State of Michigan, while at the same time it was conducted by the Church.

Even after four years had passed, it was in its infancy reported to our General Synod as a church-school, and as such was received under our care. Nor was there in this, the slightest idea of dissimulation, for, in reality, the community was at liberty to continue its whole enterprise on a purely ecclesiastical basis.

Another interval of four years elapsed, with the two-fold anomaly still in force—a district-school as regards the State—an Academy as regards the Church—occupying the same building, and enjoying the same teaching, namely that of Elder Walter T. Taylor and his family.

Then a separation was effected. Nearly a score of boys were selected under the new Principal, Rev. John Van Vleck, and these constituted the Holland Academy. All the other children and youth, of whom there were more than a hundred, remained as a local school. That organization is now your Union School, with its three Ward Schools on the one hand, and its High School on the other, in which there are gathered some fifteen hundred pupils needing the services of twenty-seven teachers.

And the other portion of the germ has been developed into Hope College with its different departments and also into Holland Theological Seminary.

What is Hope College? First, what is a college in general? Etymologically considered, a college is not merely a collection, but rather a selection, which is defined by Webster to be a collection of things called.

There must precede a careful examination as to qualifications for beginning the Four Years' Course. All study and all time previous to that course, is called Preparatory—all subsequent is Postgraduate.

What is there that is peculiar to the quadrennial period? It is not simply a continuance in study, for what has usually characterized the four years preceding, and after characterizing the four years following. There must, however, be some distinguishing mark by which a special term of four years is singled out and styled a college course. And this is found in the idea of a liberal education.

And what is a liberal education? It is a broad, comprehensive one, that enables a person to choose any calling in life, as opposed to a special cause which limits a person to the particular pursuit which has been in view.

It is plain that any merely special course is not a college course, even though it may be dignified by that name, and though its completion may be stamped by a degree of some kind.

Let us imagine that when the ordinary period of preparation is ended, a person should begin and complete a four-year course of theology, or medicine, or law or science, or journalism; such an one has not really received a college education. With a little knowledge of English and Latin, one may enter the Medical Department of a State University and obtain the degree of M. D., but such an one has not taken a college course, nor has he had a liberal education.

If the world needs specialists, and I do not say that it does not, and if life be too short to permit to any a liberal education, then let such be sent to special schools. But the world needs also men of the broadest culture, and the true college is devoted to their equipment. Nay, I would multiply fellowships and would make Science and Journalism as well as Law and Medicine and Theology, postgraduate courses.

Hope College has thus far been maintained on the true foundation; and its alumni are the peers of the graduates of any institution in our land.

Introductory to the delivery ring of the keys by the Rev. Dr. Brett, President of the council, ex-President Phelps presented to the institution the gown and hat worn by him at his installation, July 12, 1866. It was made after the Chancellor's gown of the University of New York and had been presented to him by the ladies of Holland. It was his desire and that of Mrs. Phelps, that it should be used on this and all future occasions. The moment was an impressive one, when the venerable ex-president commended his successor and the institution "to Him who brought this people here, and gave them their indomitable leader."

The inaugural address of President Kollen will be found on the last page.

COMMENCEMENT CHATTER.

The council of Hope College at its session on Tuesday organized by the election of the following officers: President, Rev. Dr. C. Brett of Jersey City,

N. J.; vice-president, Rev. J. F. Zwe-mer, Orange City, Ia.; secretary, G. J.

Diekema, Holland; treasurer, I. Cappon, Holland.

Rev. Abel H. Huizenga, Ph.D., of

New Paltz, N. Y., has been elected at the McCormick Presb. Seminary in Chicago. Prof. elect Rev. Henry E.

Dosker has received the degree of D. D.

from the Trustees of Rutgers College, the same institution that also conferred the title of LL. D. upon President

Kollen. Verily, Hope's boys are coming to the front.

The day of the dedication was a proud one for Jas. Huntley, the contractor of the Library building, as he saw and heard the universal satisfaction with the manner in which he had

Rev. A. P. Peake, of Millstone, N.

J., reached the city Wednesday in time to attend the inauguration ceremonies. He brought to the classmates of H. V. S. Peake the information that a son had been born in his far away home in Japan, on May 7.

Rev. A. Oltmans of Nagasaki, Japan, has been present at the commencement exercises and seems much elated over the marked progress that Hope college has made during his absence.

There were many very favorable expressions made and compliments extended to those who so artistically decorated the old chapel on Monday afternoon. It is but proper to say that this work was placed under the entire supervision of the Misses. Ple-ters, Otte, and Van Duren.

Upon a table at the right of the platform at the Preparatory Dept. exercises on Monday afternoon were placed the flowers and remembrances to the graduates. There were not only many fragrant and expensive baskets of flowers, that fade in a few hours, but also other valuable gifts, including gold watches, jewelry, books, fans, and numerous other useful articles that will be highly prized

by the recipients.

Miss Pieters did not receive the recognition

she was deserving of at the rhetorical entertainment, Monday. She is one of the brightest and most scholarly girls in her class, but unfortunately labored under the disadvantage of being placed first on the program.

The students of Hope College should now make a desperate effort to have the old chapel restored to the purpose for which it was originally intended—a gymnasium. In the days of "small beginnings," the students not only solicited

the money with which to pay for the lumber, but also put in many a hard day's labor to place the building where it now stands. Even holidays and Saturdays were sacrificed, only to see it converted by the inexorable force of the situation to other uses. Just now something is needed for the development of the physical manhood in our home institution, and that is a well equipped gymnasium.

Many of the characteristics so noticeable in Dr. Phelps to those who best knew him over a quarter of a century ago still exist, and the remark was passed by every one "how well he retains his age." His step is as firm, his mental faculties as well preserved, his conversation

as vivacious and his manner as complaisant

"as in days of yore," when Hope was struggling for existence and Holland village was comparatively speaking a sand hole.

The Best Medicine.

J. O. WILSON, Contractor and Builder, Sulphur Springs, Texas, thus speaks of Ayer's Pills:

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine I ever tried; and, in my judgment, no better general remedy could be devised. I have used them in my family and recommended them to my friends and employees for more than twenty years. To my certain knowledge, many cases of the following complaints have been completely cured."

Permanently Cured

by the use of Ayer's Pills alone: Third day chills, dumb ague, bilious fever, sick headache, rheumatism, flux, dyspepsia, constipation, and hard colds. I know that a moderate use of Ayer's Pills, continued for a few days or weeks, as the nature of the complaint required, would be found an absolute cure for the disorders I have named above."

"I have been selling medicine for eight years, and I can safely say that Ayer's Pills give better satisfaction than any other pill I ever sold."—J. J. Perry, Spottsylvania C. H., Va.

An Electric Launch Capsized on Lake St. Clair.

Only Two Out of Five Persons Aboard Are Saved—B. J. Healey Loses His Life in Trying to Rescue His Two Daughters.

A SAD DISASTER.

DETROIT, June 25.—In a hurricane that swept the river about 6 o'clock Sunday night a small electric launch containing its owner, B. J. Healey, and five other persons was capsized. Healey and his two daughters were drowned, but the two other occupants were rescued. When the boat tipped over, Healey, who was at the helm, made a gallant attempt to save his daughters. He swam through the boiling water and several times dived beneath the boat in his efforts to find them. He continued his search until exhausted and sank before help could reach him.

FAREWELL TO ANN ARBOR.

Exercises of the Graduating Class of the Law Department.

ANN ARBOR, June 26.—The class day exercises of the senior "laws" were held Monday forenoon in University hall. The programme consisted of an address by the class president, Robert Emmet Minahan, M. D.; the class history by L. R. Herrick, the oration by James L. Poston, class prophecy by Daniel John Buckley and the valedictory by Victor O. Coltrane, interspersed with music by the Chequamegon orchestra. Mr. Minahan graduated from the Rush Medical college in 1889, and after following the profession three years left a practice of $5,000 to study law. His address was a practical and able production, in which he eulogized the profession of law. The class history by Mr. Herrick, a graduate of the University of Illinois, contained many local allusions that were of great interest to the class. The class numbers 289, with an average age of 24 years and 10 months; maximum age, 36 years and 5 months; minimum, 18 years and 6 months, and representing eleven nationalities. Mr. Coltrane's valedictory was largely in the nature of an address. The oration by Mr. Poston was a masterly production entitled: "When the Shackles Are Removed." Mr. Poston won the Kansas state oratorical contest with this oration in 1892. He dwelt on methods of prison reform.

The exercises of the day were closed by the senior promenade and lawn social at night on the campus. This was an innovation which is to be credited to the literary class of '94. The campus was beautifully illuminated with hundreds of Chinese lanterns along the State street side, furnishing a pleasing sight. No less than 1,000 persons were on the campus viewing the illuminations and enjoying the concert.

ANN ARBOR, June 27.—The commencement exercises Tuesday were given up to the class day of the graduates of the literary department. The exercises were held under the Tappan Oak, in the rear of the main hall. The class oration was by W. W. Wedemeyer, who spoke on "Some Paths of Duty." James R. Nelson read the class poem, "Parting," and Walrie L. Osenburg read the history of the class since entering college. The exercises concluded with the farewell address by the class President, Daniel F. Lyons. At night the senior reception was held in Waterman gymnasium. Many guests were present from Detroit, Chicago, Toledo and other places.

PAID OUT BIG SUMS.

The Michigan Central Settles with Victims of a Wreck.

JACKSON, June 28.—Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Anderson, of Morris Run, N. Y., have settled their suit brought for $50,000 damages against the Michigan Central for injuries sustained in the wreck of October 13. The exact figures cannot be obtained but the settlement will not vary much from $50,000. The claim for damages made by Blanch Beardsley has been settled. The guess of $7,500 for Miss Beardsley's claim is not far out of line. Charles Benedict has settled the claim of his daughter for damages, but he did not get as much as Mr. Beardsley did, as his daughter's injuries were not so severe. It is believed he got $5,000.

A FATAL ERROR.

An examination showed the daughter that her father was breathing his last as the result of her alarm. He died in her arms. Corrigan was 38 years old.

President Kollen's Inaugural.

ADDRESS DELIVERED AT HIS INSTALLATION AS PRESIDENT OF HOPE COLLEGE, JUNE 27, 1894.

Our presence here is an evidence of the general interest felt in christian education; and it is therefore fitting that we should briefly consider the christian college as to its history and its needs.

The history of the christian college is co-extensive and contemporaneous with christianity itself. Christianity has ever been the foster-mother of education.

Schools and colleges wherever they exist, almost without exception, owe their origin to the church. Christianity is in its very nature, friendly to learning. It produces an inquiring, observing, thinking and intelligent laity, and therefore demands a reading, studying, reflecting and learned ministry.

Here in our own country the educational, as well as the political and religious institutions were largely copied from those in the mother country. And as in those old countries state and church were united, it is natural that the relation of the government and the church should be very close in colonial days. Almost without exception, either through chartered rights and privileges, or by means of self-government, they made provisions for education, by granting privileges and charters to private schools or by establishing schools and colleges by legislative enactment, to be supported in part by taxation. The early settlers felt that their united efforts were required, through the church, the government and private benevolence, to keep learning from being "buried in the grave" of their forefathers.

The educational as well as the political institutions were but parts of European civilization removed across the Atlantic. The germs of education were transplanted to a virgin soil, differentiating only from the old plant, in so far as demanded by new environments. The first schools in America were like those which the colonists had known in the mother countries, while education had in a great measure the same aim.

But as many of these first colonists were an exiled people, for conscience sake, it is but natural that the religious element and the love for liberty should be intensified in their educational work. These elements of character that were born in the day of oppression and in the night of persecution, naturally gave rise to a peculiar sternness and a certain narrowness, which have called forth hard criticisms; yet they were the solid foundations upon which republics could be built.

Hallam says that the stern Puritans, exasperated at the religious formalism and political persecution, rebelled so manfully that they were the depositaries of the sacred fire of liberty. Hume says that the authority of the Crown was so absolute that the precious spark of liberty had been kindled, and was preserved by the Puritans alone, and to this sect the English owe the full freedom of their constitution. They looked upon liberty as the political gospel which was every man's right.

The cruel autocrat, King James, could not endure those evangelists of freedom, and prophets of liberty. The despised and persecuted Puritans, became the poor wandering pilgrims, and found a refuge and a hospitable welcome in "brave little Holland," which thereby became the nursery for the infant reforms of the world and which will ever deserve the praise of rocking the cradle of great ideas that have so largely shaped the destiny of the world.

No wonder that the pilgrim fathers, having for a number of years enjoyed such a schooling as Holland afforded, should found Harvard College as early as 1633, only eighteen years after the first landing on Plymouth Rock. It was one of the first things they thought of, and as Cotton Mather well says, "It was the best thing they ever thought of."

These, indeed, were days of small beginning, but of deep interest and marked devotion and self-denial. While the state controlled it and assisted it constantly in its days of feebleness, the permanent endowments came largely from private sources. The first private gift was made by John Harvard, after whom the college was named, who gave his library and half his estate, estimated at $1,000. The sacrifices of individuals constantly went hand in hand with the generosity and patronage of the state, and upon this basis the first schools of Massachusetts were built. Individuals who could not give even a small subscription in ready money, contributed to the support of the college by farm produce, or by household articles and books. Among other donations are mentioned "a great silver salt," "a silver beer bowl," "one fruit dish, one sugar spoon, and one silver-tipped jug," "a silver tankard," "a pewter flagon," "corn and meat," "thirty ewe sheep and their lambs," "lumber," "horses," etc.

These small beginnings rapidly increased in amount until private donations far exceeded in amount the aid of the state, that it seems ever since of the state. But the function to have exercised in the United States, is that of fostering and protecting education, and encouraging and stimulating private benevolence in this direction.

While the state and the church have, in the matter of education drifted apart, so that now the christian or denominational college but seldom receives direct aid by taxation, as did the colleges in the early history of our country, yet the state gives them indirect aid, by freedom from taxation, on all property in practical use. But as there is a tendency to-day toward state universities, the privileges of non-state schools are growing less, until the comparatively new state of California, upon the principle that all property ought to be taxed, levies upon the property of institutions of learning, and thus taxes education and benevolence.

I speak of the history of the christian college thus fully, in order that it may be known what education owes to the church. The christian college owes the world no apology for its existence.

I speak of it in order to show that our own beloved institution, Hope College, is right in line with the history of christian colleges. How much our own history reads like a repetition of these early histories of the colleges established by the colonists of New England. Ours like theirs had its origin in the church, and was established for Christ, the church and the state.

I do not remember that ever a silver beer bowl was given to Hope College, but I do remember most distinctly that a big lumber wagon was passed through the country, gathering corn and meat for the Holland Academy.

Yes, the history of christian education, so beautifully intertwined with the history of our republic, fills our hearts with love and admiration for our ancestors. Not to give them at least a word of eulogy on an occasion like this, would betray gross ingratitude.

A grand heritage is ours. The noble and true defenders of justice and liberty, the ancestors of many of us, were in the land of dikes and dunes, a school to the Pilgrim Fathers, and afterwards became the foundation of our republic. Then there are these "Western Pilgrim Fathers," men, strong in faith, prevailing in prayer, of self-denying spirit, whose heroism did honor to their brave ancestry. With such an ancestry we feel inclined to endorse the sentiment of the Grand Duke of Somerset, when he said that he sincerely pitied Adam because he had no ancestors.

The practical, ambitious Napoleon, at the head of his vast army of conquest, cried out, on the plains of Egypt, to those he there summoned to battle, "Soldiers! from the top of those pyramids, forty centuries look down on you." And a mightier than Napoleon, the Apostle of the Gentiles said, "Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us set aside every weight and the sin which does so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

What has been frequently settles the question what should be, and quite as frequently it indicates what is to be. As has been well said "the work of the past is not yet ended." It continually goes on, shaping the present and determining the future. With this truth in mind, let us inquire briefly as to some of the needs of a christian college, and therefore of Hope College.

I. The first necessity in the establishment and further development of a christian college is a clear and deep conviction that everything in connection with it is to be controlled and characterized by religion.

Religion, in such an institution, is not to be a mere accident, put there because many of the parents of the student desire it, and because it adds to its popularity. The institution is to be thoroughly saturated with it, showing itself in the lives of its teachers, and always being regarded by them as the only safe foundation for character-building and the development of the highest manhood. No speculative philosophy should take the place of the old doctrines of the Bible. Christ should be held up as a pattern for all; and his vicarious sacrifice as the only sufficient redeeming grace. Such truths may be lived and taught in so-called secular institutions, controlled by the state. Such truths, we believe, are often taught in state colleges and universities, but it does not seem to be in accord with the constitutions governing such institutions. I have no desire to discuss this system, as such; I only wish to say that if the Church would have her children taught religion, that she must herself provide the instruction.

II. A christian college must be provided with resources and appliances, equal to those of other institutions of similar rank.

It seems to me that in our day christian colleges are somewhat in danger of presenting on their religion, and would consider it as a substitute or equivalent for other things that belong to a well-furnished college. Religion may sanctify scholarship, but it will not pass as a substitute for it. Religion may give a blessed direction to a strong cultured intellect, but there may be a pious youth, though sadly deficient in acumen. In like manner a number of pious young men, calling themselves students, together with a number of christian gentlemen, calling themselves teachers, may be faithful in attendance upon prayer-meetings and other religious duties, but without the ordinary appliances and resources they would not in the long run constitute a college. Colleges established by christian people ought to be endowed and as well equipped as those founded by the state, both as to brain and money. While religion is the first and indispensable requisite in a christian college, yet scholarship should never be sacrificed to it. A young man should never be made to feel that he is brought under special religious influences in a christian college at the expense of educational advantages.

The church owes it to her past history in education; she owes it to Christ, her King, whose right it is to reign over all; she owes it to the world, which she is commissioned to reclaim from the bondage of sin—that she afford her consecrated youth equal advantages with those of the state.

I do not mean to say that all branches should be taught in our colleges as they are in institutions with almost unmeasured resources, but that whatever is taught should be taught equally well. A college can not in the very nature of the case be a professional school. Its work is to lay foundations of knowledge and character, upon which the professional schools can safely and successfully be built. In the educational system of our country, the college seems to be the basis of the lower public school, as well as of the highest technical institution. The college existed prior to our public school system, and made the establishment and development of that system a possibility. The college with one arm embraces the common school by giving it teachers, and with the other the professional schools, supplying them with pupils.

Shall our whole educational system meet with the best result, then must this triumvirate stand true to each other. "United we stand, divided we fall"; and shall it affect the moral nature as well as the intellectual; shall its influence reach beyond the confines of this life, then must Jesus Christ be the chief corner stone of the whole structure.

In order that the christian college shall be strong in resources and appliances, it will be readily seen that it should occupy a field sufficiently large and a point strategically and advantageously. Colleges must not be too greatly multiplied. By so doing they must necessarily degenerate into inferior schools, and be themselves but the reduced preparatory institutions, which are the natural tributaries and main dependence of the college.

III. An intelligent, sympathetic, generous community, where it is located, and a constituency in general, that is devoted to the cause of education, are indispensable to the success of a christian college. The life of a college is in the bosom of the community surrounding it and for which it is established. "The people who see its buildings, its instructors and its students every day, have more to do with it, to help or to hinder, than any other people." Foreign funds may give it support in its infancy, but shall it grow up strong, and become fruitful, then must it be indigenous to the soil—then must it enjoy the sympathy and seasonable support of those nearest to it.

This college has reason to congratulate itself on being located in this city, among its friends; in a town beautiful for situation. The hearts of the Fathers of this colony were fixed upon a broad and high education as of the first importance unto the church and the world. Hence our college was founded and its corner stone was laid with prayers and faith and hope—it being considered "as the anchor of our hope, for the future of this people." It is our distinguishing glory among the towns upon the east shore of the great lake. Built upon a foundation so sure, the sons, true to their origin, will not fail to carry on what the Fathers began.

Time will not permit us to speak of the need of a wise and liberal administration on the part of the trustees and an efficient corps of teachers, and a consecrated band of students. Suffice it to say that while Hope College has not attained to the ideal, yet our condition and circumstances are such that we have abundant reason to take courage and praise the Lord.

At the call of these honored members of the council and of the Reform Church, I to-day personally assume new and weighty responsibilities. I approach them with the deepest solicitude. When I think of the noble men by whose faithful prayers and self-denying efforts this College was founded; when I think of its past history and its present possibilities, then I shrink from assuming the responsibilities, for fear that by reason of any shortcoming on our part, its future history should not accord with its past. As I think of my worthy predecessors, whose place I am to occupy, but can not fill, I feel that the saying of the ancient bard is applicable, "Siquiturque patrem laud possibus acqvis"—he follows his father, but not with equal steps. I earnestly desire that the mantle of my own beloved President may to-day especially fall upon me in a figurative sense. The example of his devotion to the cause of Christ, his unselfish spirit shown in supporting the cause of christian education among us, his marvellous disciplinary power, which was a comfort to those who loved the right, and a fear to those who were inclined to walk in forbidden paths—these still live in the hearts of his admiring students, and his example will be a powerful influence wherever these sons of Hope are toiling for Christ and for humanity. And the love and self-denying spirit of my immediate predecessor, who is already reaping his blessed reward, will be to us all a healthy, helpful inspiration.

But notwithstanding the doubts and fears that crowd in upon us in this solemn hour, by reason of the greatness of the work and our own insufficiency, there is also much of hope and encouragement. Though inducted into a new office, I am not to you a new man. For more than a quarter of a century have I been connected with this institution, either as student or teacher, and as the new office does not in itself give new qualifications, you will expect no more than is in my power to give.

It cheers us to know that our own beloved Church, our foster mother, is deeply interested in this institution, and appreciates its blessed opportunities of usefulness for the church and for the state in this fast developing west—that there are in her communion sons and daughters blessed with earthly goods, who by their generosity have shown their love for christian education and learned by experience the great truth, that, while the college is a blessing to the world in general, it is such especially to those who by their noble beneficence give it support, and thus make it a great power.

When monumental marble has crumbled, men will speak with admiration and reverent gratitude of a George Peabody, John Hopkins, J. D. Rockefeller, Philip Armour; and then the sons and daughters of Hope, yet unborn, will not, we trust, forget to speak with love and appreciation of Mrs. G. E. Winants, Nathan F. Graves, and Miss Alida Van Schaick. Has the college need of the wealth of the rich, his wealth has yet larger need of the college. "Without the aid of the higher education in the past much of wealth could not have been created; and without the aid of the higher education of the present, wealth would now become sordid; gold-dust is no less dust because it is golden."

Wealth owes much to education and it is one of the happy signs of the times that so many of the rich, nobly pay the debt. We trust that the time is coming, yes is here, when also in our own Reformed Church, our wealthy citizens will give to educational purposes large portions of their wealth and can thus control and enjoy their gifts. They who have enjoyed the accumulating, should not suffer themselves to lose the joy of distributing. "Of all your work, what have you enjoyed the most?" was asked George Peabody. "The jodging houses I built for the artisans of London."

The present seems to me a critical period in the history of our Church. We are now in many respects enjoying golden opportunities. "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at its flood, leads on to fortune." So there is also in the affairs of institutions.

Is it an extravagance when we claim that this institution largely holds the key to the situation as to the future of our Church? Does not the present seem to be a crisis with us? It is now, or never. There is a time for sowing, and a time for reaping. When the grain is ripe the sickle must be thrust in it at once. What is ripe will soon rot and will no more be worth reaping. This is no cause for alarm or discouragement. This should only spur us on to greater zeal and fidelity. An increasing demand in christian enterprise is a cause for joy and thanksgiving.

THE ALUMNI.

Like the Gracchi of the Roman mother, so the Alumni are the jewels of their Alma Mater. Hope College is justly proud of her Alumni. Her sons and daughters are doing faithful work all around the globe. While our hearts go out in love and sympathy to our beloved brothers and sisters in Arabia and Egypt, in China and Japan, and to those who are out on the frontier in our own land, we feel that their spirits are with us to-day.

The sons and daughters of Hope, who appreciate what their foster mother has done for them, will feel that they can never fully repay what they have so generously received. Their hearts go out to her as did that of the captive Jew in Babylon, to Zion: "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth."

THE FACULTY.

My fellow teachers:—Yours is indeed an enviable position in connection with this college. Whatever is done by outsiders, largely only affects the outside, the shell of the institution. For you the blessed work is reserved to bring on the finishing touches. Others may give buildings, endow professorships, send students—to you largely belongs the great work to convert all these into polished intellects, noble manhood, consecrated lives.

UNDER GRADUATES.

You constitute the material for which all this work is done and out of which must be produced polished shafts for the quiver of the Lord. You are our letters, known and read of all men. Upon your christian character and faithfulness to your work, will largely depend the success of this college.

Finally, while we are profoundly thankful for the confidence of the council, and the words of hope and cheer that have been spoken to us by the representatives of Alumni, Students and Faculty, we would confess with humility and a deep sense of dependence that all our efforts—the generosity of the rich in furnishing ample endowments, the encouragement and support of the community, the sympathy and co-operation of the alumni, the wisdom of the council, the hopefulness and fidelity of the students, the devotedness and efficiency of the faculty, must all fail to build up our college without the blessing of the Lord. "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it; except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." We would then call upon godly parents and friends of the college to join us in earnest prayer to God, that it may be made increasingly a fountain, whose streams shall gladden the city of our God.

Our highest hopes and sincere prayers will be fully realized so long as Hope College and its friends remain true to its motto, "Spern in Deo," Hope thou in God.

Pallor, languidness and the appearance of ill-health being no longer fashionable among ladies, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is more largely resorted to as tonic, alternative, nervine, stomachic, and builder-up of the system generally. This is as it should be. Ayer's is the best.
